Farmingville, NY – On September 1, Councilman Kevin LaValle (left) and Legislator Tom Muratore (right) co-hosted the Long Island Blood Services Blood Drive at the Middle Country Public Library in Centereach. Fifty-seven pints of blood were taken over the course of the day and donors were offered two free Mets tickets as an added bonus.

"Whenever anyone donates blood, we are helping our neighbors in need or possibly saving a life. I was happy to join with Legislator Muratore once again to co-sponsor this community blood drive in Centereach," said Councilman LaValle. "I was blown away by the overwhelming show of support from our community. Many local residents participated, allowing us to collect nearly 60 pints!"

"Blood donations save lives, and I appreciate those caring individuals who supported our drive. I'd like to give special thanks to the Middle Country Public Library, especially Director Sophia Serlis-McPhillips, who supports many of our community events and provides us a great venue," stated Legislator Muratore.
